Over last few decades, we have witnessed significant growth in the domain of Operations Research (OR), which enables organizations to take 'informed' business decisions for effectively managing their operations or exploring new avenues for future. This field has been playing crucial role in our economic, social and rural growth. Recent developments in Computational Methods and Information & Communication Technology (ICT) have aided this growth. This conference intends to provide awareness about the developments in OR and its inter-disciplinary applications in management through keynote addresses, panel discussions, tutorials and pre-reviewed research paper presentations.
