BACKGROUND

Jayapura, the capital of Papua Province, has its strategic positions as one of the National Activity Centers, National Strategic Activity Centers and inter-state border cities. Jayapura functions as the center of administration, regional economy and public services for the government, private sector and other institutions. Regarding national defense and security, Jayapura is the head-quarters for national army and police in eastern region of Indonesia. As well, Jayapura has the widest and largest range of services in Papua Province. Jayapura harbor is the central terminal for inter-region mobility and economic distribution and being one of the most active ports in eastern part of Indonesia. The inter-state gate of Jayapura is the largest border-gate, connecting Indonesia and countries in the Pacific Region.

Jayapura represents how progress can be achieved in Papua Province in terms of urban development. Fast-track development approaches led by Mayor of Jayapura since 2012 has positioned Jayapura in the top ten cities in Indonesia with the best public services. Jayapura has received awards, both nationally and internationally, recognizing range of innovations carried out by Jayapura Municipal Government regarding sustainable development, public services and social-cultural development.
