21ˢᵗ UKSS International Conference

SYSTEMS RESEARCH IN THE DIGITAL AGE

The UK Systems Society is delighted to announce the 21ˢᵗ UKSS International Conference will be at Lancaster University on the 22ⁿᵈ June 2020.

The conference will be of particular interest to Systems practitioners and academics who are engaged in Systems research.

"Systems research in the digital age" is the conference theme to understand effective practice

Digital technologies are continuing to revolutionise how organisations operate. The purpose of the conference is to understand the contributions of Systems research in digitising organisations and the future relevance of Systems research. The conference should appeal to a wide range of consultancy and research topics, such as:

- Culture, leisure and tourism
- Environment and sustainability
- Managing change
- Organisational improvement
- Policing and disaster management
- Physical activity, health, well-being
- Retail and high street decline
- Social care, housing and urban living
- Socio-technical systems.

The Conference submission system is now open at:
